WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Fuel & Petrochemical Manufacturers (AFPM) President and CEO Chet Thompson issued the following statement on the inauguration of the 47th President of the United States and the opportunity to advance policies that deliver for American energy manufacturers and consumers:

> “America’s refining, petrochemical and midstream energy industries look forward to working with President Trump, Vice President Vance and members of the 119th Congress. Americans benefit when our leaders and policies safeguard consumer choice, leverage the strengths of our domestic facilities, assets and innovative workforce, and preserve fierce and fair global competition. We are eager to contribute where AFPM’s members and expertise can help to inform and advance policies that deliver for consumers, the U.S. economy and our national security.” – Chet Thompson, AFPM President and CEO

About AFPM:

The American Fuel & Petrochemical Manufacturers (AFPM) is the leading trade association representing the makers of the fuels that keep us moving, the petrochemicals that are the essential building blocks for modern life, and the midstream companies that get our feedstocks and products where they need to go. We make the products that make life better, safer and more sustainable — we make progress.
